About the Partnership

Native American Veterans Association (NAVA) and DrKumo Inc. are building a partnership to provide Remote Patient Monitoring Solutions to Native Americans & Veterans with chronic diseases.

This sponsored/free pilot program aims to develop new healthcare channels that help doctors save lives and bring medical access to some of the most under-represented communities.

The Health status of Native Americans & Veterans can be better than it is today. Join us!

If you or someone you know struggles with a heart condition, diabetes or other chronic diseases, please contact NAVA for more information about the goal of the DrKumo® RPM program.

PROGRAM NAME	NAVA/DrKumo Telemedicine Pilot Program
BRIEF OVERVIEW OF THIS PROGRAM:	Native American Veterans Association (NAVA), an advocate for tribal and non-tribal veterans and their families, partners with DrKumo, to initiate AI-powered Remote Patient Monitoring Solution among Native American Veterans. "It was an honor for us to introduce our simple yet intelligent remote care technology to Native American veterans as we partner with NAVA. One of our goals is to transform the way people access quality care outside the hospital environment especially for the elderly and underserved populations," said Kelly Nguyen, CEO of DrKumo. NAVA is a Native American based organization that stretches its helping hand to all tribal and non-tribal veterans and their families. In its Talking Circle held on May 8, 2021, DrKumo kicked off the latest innovations in remote care delivery to empower Native American veterans to be able to monitor their health conditions remotely in real-time and achieve a better quality of life. "We encourage our Native American veterans to enroll in a pilot program with DrKumo. Its real-time monitoring allows patients to be checked by their healthcare providers remotely and thus reduce costly avoidable hospitalizations and readmissions," said Ted Tenorio, president of NAVA.
